THE SOCIAL CITY

Urban Development and Housing Projects in Berlin and Naples in the Postwar Era
– a comparison: theoretical models, implemented projects, social and political impacts today

AVERSA|NAPLES

The reconstruction after the second World War in Berlin and Naples had many common features.

Projects of social housing were one of the biggest tasks for the two cities. Which were the theoretical schemes used? How were those social housing projects planned, implemented and inhabited? Which is their conservation status today? Which are the current social, architectural and adaptation challenges?

Two Workshops of five days, one in Berlin and one in Naples, will involve students, experts, and academics to compare various case studies in the two cities.
